Pizza Social & (mostly silent) Auction

AT THE MUSEUM OF BIOLOGICAL DIVERSITY,
1315 Kinnear Road, south side of the road, easy to find -
EAST of North Star or WEST of Kenny and Olentangy River Roads and Rt. 315.

Search the cushions for a few coins, invite a friend as guest, and join us for big slices of fun'n'games.

BMG received a large donation of Mac and communications soft and hardware, and we've organized it into an auction-like format to make garage sale-like rummaging for bargains fast, fun and easy.

What's in drawer # 19? Take a look. Someone will win it, drawer and all. Oh, you wanted the newer Orbit Trackball? Try drawer #16... and see what other treasures may lurk in there as bonuses.

Hardware, with lots of mic's, cables and connectors, audio and Monster video... software, from System 6 and 7.x floppies (oh, and a USB floppy drive) thru 8.5/6 and OS X, from Claris's thru FileMaker Pro editions, various graphical and video, page layout; business ware thru an Office X, lots of manuals, some books and inimitable Mac Bibles. This is one time when, "and more," means, alot ... "more."

Proceeds apply to purchase of a new, higher-res projector (that enables all our meeting presentations to the large wall-screen format).

So round-up a guest, and come join the legacy treasure hunt... leave the plastic at home, change and small bills-checks only... Or just sit back with your pizza and Macpeople-watch, in this special edition of our annual, August pizza social. <http://www.buckeyemac.org>

“Why your student should take a Mac...

As students ready for school, Bob "Dr.Mac" Levitus has published twelve very good reasons for college students to take a Mac instead of PC with them when they go to college. The article is also great food for thought for fence sitters, thinking about switching. <http://www.macobserver.com/article/2008/08/13.6.shtml>

The Future as enabled by the iPhone

The Journal's Walt Mossberg, at an Ideas Festival, spoke about the rise and importance of the iPhone. He set the stage by pointing out that the Internet is not a place, but rather a pervasive utility. When we switch to that kind of thinking, the future enabled by the Apple iPhone comes into perspective. <http://www.ipodobserver.com/story/36869>

Phishing Scam Fooled Some MobileMe's

A Phishing scam timed to coincide with the launch of MobileMe has tricked hundreds of Apple customers into divulging their credit card numbers, according to Computerworld.

MobileMe Gets Status Blog

Apple began offering more transparency for MobileMe after launching a status blog for its online service. The MobileMe Status blog opened with an entry discussing a topic many users have been interested in: the extended email outage some subscribers have been suffering through.

<http://www.ipodobserver.com/story/36695>

CEO Steve Jobs is disappointed with the MobileMe launch and the service's performance so far, and he let staff members know. He said in an email to employees that the Internet-based service was launched too early and that it is not "up to Apple's standards."

i/Photo/Movie/Web updates, iLife support

Apple has slipped out iPhoto 7.1.4, iMovie 7.1.4, iWeb 2.0.4 updates for general compatibility issues, stability, and to address a number of other so-called minor issues, according to Apple's scant release notes.

The iLife Support 8.3 update for shared components is free and available via the Software Update application or at the Apple Support Web site.

Using Flash and Shockwave on the Mac

The differences and running the the right versions, can be tricky. This article attempts to sort it out .

Scrapping Windows for Midori?

They're not saying publically, but leaks indicate a componentized OS built from a new code base.

Jobs: I'm OK, butt out.

Steve Jobs, to a NY Times reporter, confirmed dealing with something more serious than the "common bug" Apple had reported, but that he is not suffering from a life-threatening illness, and it's a private matter. (Counterpoint: How private is the health of a celeb CEO of a public corporation?)
